Turkey Mobilizes On Soviet Frontier, Report

MOVEMENT OF TROOPS RUMOR STIRS BALKANS

Telephone Communication to Turkey Broken, Arouses New Excitement In Capitals.

'EXPLOSIVE SITUATION'

Russian Fleet Maneuevers In Black Sea Reported; Reds Order Blackout Drills.

(By United Press)

ROME — Balkan capitals heard unconfirmed reports today that Turkey had mobilized troops along its Russian frontier as its first big scale move after invocation of a drastic national defense law.

Excitement was heightened because telephonic communication between Turkey and European capitals was interrupted all night. Operators insisted that the interruption was due to "technical reasons," due to damaged lines at the Turkish end.

The newspaper Messaggero here, in a Bucharest dispatch, quoted a report that Turkey had ordered full mobilization. There were counter-reports denying mobilization. Messaggero added, however, that private information received at Bucharest indicated that Turkey was strengthening its Russian frontier forces.

Turkey had been under a state approaching, if not approximating, one of emergency since the government last Monday invoked the national defense law, empowering it to strengthen defenses, control exports and imports and reorganize key industries to supply the needs of the armed forces.

Government Orders Law.

(The Turkish government invoked the law, during a meeting of the supreme defense council at Ankara, under parliamentary authority which sanctioned the application of the defense act in the event of any three extraordinary cases: (1) partial or general mobilization; (2) the probability that the nation would enter war; and (3) the existence of a state of war among foreign nations which was of interest to Turkey. The government did not specify under which of the cases it acted.)

TRAWLER SUNK

Britain Admits Loss, Claims 4 German Subs Destroyed.

LONDON —(AP)— In the grim give-and-take war on the seas Britain today announced the sinking of the naval trawler Benvolio by a mine with loss of 10 men while press reports said four German submarines had been sunk by British fliers and a merchantman.

In the air there was give-and-take also with the air ministry announcing a night penetration of greater Germany as far as Prague while German planes scouted France even to the outskirts of Paris.

The reports that four German submarines had been sunk, three by Royal Air Force bombs and one through ramming by the British steamer Asiatic off the Shetland islands, were without official confirmation.

Man Away During Liquor Raid, Walks to Sheriff's Office.

Pete Soron, 54, of 106 Lewis avenue, who was absent when federal liquor officers and deputy sheriffs raided his home yesterday, gave himself up at the sheriff's office yesterday afternoon and was fined $100 and costs by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court for illegal possession of liquor.

When Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, and Brice Armstrong and Solomon Israel, federal agents from Cleveland, raided Soron's home yesterday a relative at the house told them he was not at home.

"Tell him to come to the sheriff's office when he comes back," Freeman said.

When the trio returned to the office they were surprised to find Soron there ahead of them. He pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of liquor and was fined. He was released under orders to pay the fine at the rate of $10 per week.

Horvath Wins 'Most Valuable' Award at Football Banquet

By OSCAR RUHL

Described as an "All-American boy" by his coach Mike Horvath was acclaimed as the outstanding member of the Mansfield high school football squad at the annual banquet staged in its honor by The News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

The presentation of the "Most Valuable Player" award by the Downtown Coaches association was a feature of the fifth annual banquet, which was attended by 150.

J. G. Blahnik, head of the Coaches' association, revealed the selection of the 1939 captain and guard as the choice of the Mansfield high coaching staff for the honor and made the presentation.

Visibly surprised by his selection, Horvath, a senior, modestly accepted the plaque with the remark that "it's the greatest thing I've ever received, but the other fellows deserve it as much as I do."

Approval of his selection after the presentation came from his teammates, who stood in a body and gave him a thunderous ovation.

Horvath, the second youngest of five brothers to wear Tyger livery, was a member of the Mansfield high squad for three years. He was named on several All-Ohio scholastic teams last fall and was a member of the All-Ohio team which played in Florida in December.

John Pfahler, who also played in the Florida game, and Dave

DEM LEADERS HEAR DAVEY LASH BRICKER

Party Shows Flash of Harmony as Ex-Governor 'Goes To Bat' For Ashbrook.

IN BEST SARCASTIC FORM

Charges Bricker Has 'Heart of Stone,' Labels McGregor as His 'Little Boy Harry.'

In a display of harmony, most of the big moguls of the Democratic party in Ohio joined in rallies last night at Newark and Coshocton in behalf of Byron B. Ashbrook, Democratic candidate for congress in the 17th district, and heard former Governor Martin L. Davey lambast the Bricker administration.

Davey, who is almost certain to be a candidate again for the nomination for governor, made the first of five talks for Ashbrook. He takes the stump again at 7:30 p. m. today at an Ashbrook rally in the Ashland High school auditorium.

In the best Davey form, the former governor referred to Bricker as "Johnny" and J. Harry McGregor, the G. O. P. candidate for congress, as "Johnny's little boy, Harry."

Not Candidate.

Davey told the crowds: "I'm not a candidate for anything—at least not yet."

Denying that he left a deficit for Bricker, when the present Republican governor took office, Davey countered, with the charge that Bricker had increased the state payroll by "a million dollars."

"Look at the record," Davey said. "I challenge you to find one thing that Bricker has done for the common people. He has a heart of stone and McGregor is his boy. Nobody went hungry in Ohio when I was governor, but the Bricker administration has seen to it that wild ducks didn't starve."

He referred to the feeding of wild ducks stranded by winter weather last month near Lake Erie.

"I never pretended to be an angel," Davey said. "When I was in office you paid for my car, my oil, my gas, a chauffeur and the salaries of two state highway patrolmen to escort me, but in return I gave you a $40,000,000 reduction in your taxes."

Denies Big Deficit.

He accused Bricker of lying when he said Davey left a deficit of $3,000,000.

"He (Bricker) knew all the time

STAND BURNS

Blaze Causes $7,500 Loss at Crawford Fairgrounds.

BUCYRUS—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the grandstand at the Crawford county fairground here, causing damage estimated at $7,500.

The blaze started about 5 p. m. and in 15 minutes the wooden stands burned to the ground, before firemen arrived. The stands had a seating capacity of 1,200, and were built in 1912, when the fair moved to its present location. Investigators today probed through the ruins to determine origin of the blaze.

This marks the second time that fire destroyed the grandstand at the fairground. The first one, being destroyed about 35 years ago. The fairground is located outside the city limits.

HEALTH CHIEF DIES

Molester Suspect, 'Old Coupe'

Confessing that he molested 11 small girls during the past nine months, a 25-year-old WPA worker who told the police his name was George W. Beck, 94 East Fourth street, is shown in the picture at the top as Detectives Lee J. Remy, left, and Oscar Krupp, at the rear, led him from his jail cell this morning for further questioning. The lower photo shows the "old coupe" identified by six girls last night as the one into which they had been enticed into the man and then driven into the country.

Senate Opponents Conceding Victory for Trade Program

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senate opponents conceded today that the triumph of Secretary Hull's trade agreements program in the house last night foreshadowed continuation of the policy in some form.

They served notice, however, that they would make a vigorous effort to attach restrictive amendments to the extension bill which the house approved, 216 to 168.

The house vote, which gave the administration a victory in the first big legislative test of the session and strengthened Secretary Hull's position at a time when he was being mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee, shifted the battle to the senate side of the capitol.

Up to the senators now is the question: Shall congress grant the executive branch of the government, for three more years, power to enter into reciprocal agreements with other countries concerning tariff reductions and other trade concessions? The present grant of authority along these lines expires June 12.

The senate opponents said they would line up behind these proposals:

1. An amendment requiring that the agreements be ratified by a two-thirds majority of the senate before they could become effective.

2. A proposal to set up a congressional "yardstick" providing limits on tariff reductions.

3. An amendment to eliminate the "most-favored-nation" theory of the existing reciprocal trade program, by which concessions granted one country are extended to all others which the government

MAE'S BROKE

Actress Lost $3,000,000 In 10 Years as Mdviani's Wife.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—When she married Georgian Prince David Mdivani, Mae Murray, blonde star of silent films, was worth $3,000,000.

Ten years later, ejected from her hotel room because she was without funds, she spent three days in New York's Central park—sitting on a bench.

This was the story Miss Murray told in court in a suit to force Mdivani to pay her $1000 for the support of her 13-year-old son, Koran David Mdivani.

After confering with counsel for Miss Murray and Mdivani, Judge Dockweiler said he would send interrogatories to a New York judge who would ask the son with which parent he preferred to live.

Longest Movie Too Short for First Night Crowd of 1,500

By JANE WILLIAMS

The longest motion picture ever made was all too short for the 1,500 persons who sat for four hours last night at the Madison theater and lived through the tragedies and blunders of the gallant people of the Confederacy.

Just as Margaret Mitchell's novel Gone With the Wind left you with a feeling there MUST be more of the story to be told, so the picture affects you, and when Scarlett weeps her final "I'll think about it tomorrow," you have the feeling that you don't want the picture to end that there MUST be more to be told.

It is too bad that Hollywood purveyors of words have used the adjective "terrific" on so much celluloid tripe, for it might have been a satisfying word to use on "Gone With the Wind." As it is, it is all too inadequate. There may be a few among the millions who see the picture that will find something to criticize, but these are the individuals who would find the Grand Canyon too big, the Rockies not high enough or Niagara too small.

Never before has a book and the spirit of a book been so accurately transfered to the screen; the picture opens where the book opened, and closes where the novel closed, and in between there is little of the major action that is omitted. Against the dark panorama of the South in its conflict, its death struggle and its attempt

OFFICERS PICK UP SUSPECT AT HIS HOME

WPA Worker, 25, Confesses He Enticed 9 Girls In City And 2 In Crestline.

IDENTIFIED BY 6 PUPILS

Mansfielder Faces Charges of Kidnaping and Assault, Police Chief Says.

Identified by six school girls as the man who had enticed them into his automobile and then drove them into the country, a 25-year-old WPA worker held in jail today had confessed to molesting 11 young girls during the past nine months.

Object of a county-wide search, the man booked at police headquarters last night, gave his name as George W. Beck, 25, of 94 East Fourth street.

Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp who arrested him at his home last evening said he had confessed to picking up nine small girls in Mansfield and two in Crestline and taking them into the country. He released them unharmed, although, according to police, he performed indecent acts before them.

Six of the children, including a seven-year-old Brinkerhoff pupil who was driven to a lonely road off Marion avenue road last week, identified the man and his automobile—the old coupe into which they had been lured and for which authorities had long been searching.

Faces 2 Charges.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said Beck probably would be charged with kidnaping and assault. He based his statement, he said, on the fact that Beck had taken the girls in his car against their wishes and on one occasion had bound one girl's hands with his handkerchief when she objected.

County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott who questioned the suspect for more than two hours at police headquarters last night said Beck had signed a statement in which he admitted the charges.

Beck is expected to be arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch for a preliminary hearing in municipal court Monday morning.

Remy and Krupp said that they picked up Beck, a WPA laborer on the Bowman street bridge project, after a license number turned over to them had been traced to him.

Picked From Line-Up.

He first denied the charges,

Winter Returns With Three-Inch Blanket of Snow

Another snow blanket, three inches deep, covered the Mansfield area today as winter played a return engagement after two days of fair weather.

The snow, which the weatherman said will continue today, will bring much colder weather tonight and Sunday. Skies will clear Sunday.

Deep slush covered city streets as the mercury rose to freezing and the snow melted. Street employes were busy spreading cinders and hauling away the snow along the curbs.

County and state highway workers were also on the job with plows and cinder trucks. Roads were reported slippery and dangerous on hills and curves.

Today's low temperature reading was 29 and the 24-hour average was 30.5, one degree above normal.

SNEEZES ABATE

Marietta Girl, 11, Passes Crisis, Doctors Hope for Recovery.

MARIETTA —(AP)— Physicians attending 11-year-old Marjorie Ruth Kaneff, who has been sneezing at intervals for six days, said today that she has passed a crisis and will recover.

Marjorie was much improved this morning after her sleep was broken only a few times during the night. For the first time since the attack began, she was able to take food through her mouth.

Roosevelt, Garner Race Looms Certain In Illinois

DEADLINE FOR WITHDRAWING FALLS TODAY

Names of President and Vice President to Go on Ballot For State's Primary.

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — A political battle between President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner for Illinois presidential preference votes appeared a certainty today as the deadline for withdrawal of nominating petitions approached.

Unless one of them withdrew by midnight tonight — and there was no indication that either would — the name of the victor in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination will be placed on the ballot.

On the Republican side the race was narrowed by the withdrawal of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York who yesterday declined to permit the use of his name and urged Illinois voters to express their preference for President Roosevelt.

Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Rep. Hamilton Fish and of New York, remained today as candidates for the Republican preference votes. Dewey filed a declaration of candidacy but the petition for Fish was filed for LaGuardia and Roosevelt was not accompanied by the usual declaration.

Although he was to have been listed as a Republican, Mayor LaGuardia took the position in withdrawing that his candidacy would have split the liberal vote otherwise going to Roosevelt.

He said:

"I do not believe at this time that progressives should be divided . . . to divide the progressives in Illinois in both primaries would confuse the issue and would give comfort to the forces of reaction."

LaGuardia used the term "progressive" in describing the current candidates for the Republican nomination.

URGE WHEELER TO RUN

WASHINGTON —(NS)— Friends of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Liberal, today are urging him to toss his hat formally into the presidential race by entering the Democratic preference primaries in California and Ohio.

Wheeler has until March 3 to decide on entering the California May 7 primary and until March 15 to enter the Ohio May 14 contest. In both states he must take affirmative action before Wheeler delegates can get on the ballot.

Man Burned Alive as Fire Destroys Race Track Tavern

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Coroner Samuel R. Gerber's decision that Willis Gallagher, 47, was burned alive in a fire that destroyed Bainbridge Inn spurred authorities today in their hunt for clues to the mystery death.

Gallagher's wife, May, made the identification from tragic remains of clothing. The arms, legs and head were burned from the body.

The inn, located three miles east of Solon and across the road from Bainbridge race track, was owned by James Thomas Flynn.

Charles W. Linert, Solon police chief, said the blaze was beyond control when the town's volunteer department arrived. The inn had been closed since Jan. 7 and firemen assumed there was no one in the one-story frame building.

that the state constitution prohibits a state debt of more than $750,000 without a vote of the people."

The 17th district voters are being asked to choose between the "broad, humanitarian principles of the New Deal as opposed to the principles of reaction prevalent in the Republican party," he added.

Attending the rallies with Davey were nearly a dozen leaders in the Democratic party in Ohio, most of them candidates for state office this year. The group included:

State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach, William J. Kennedy, former secretary of state, and Herbert S. Duffy, former attorney general; Mrs. Mildred Jaster, national committeewoman; William Pickerel, former lieutenant governor; John McSweeney, former congressman-at-large; State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson; R. M. Winegardner, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Victor Harding, executive secretary of the party's national congressional campaign committee.

McGregor In Johnstown.

McGregor invaded Ashbrook's home town, Johnstown, last night, to make an address at an American Legion meeting there.

The G. O. P. candidate will be in Mansfield tonight to speak at a county-wide rally in Republican headquarters on North Main street. The meeting will open at 7:30 p. m.

At last night's Democratic "harmony" meetings, State Chairman Limbach invited Harry A. Caton of Coshocton to enter the crowded filed for the Democratic nomination for governor. Caton is former chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees.

Speaking at Coshocton, Limbach said: "I am glad to be in Coshocton, the home town of Harry Caton, who I personally think would make a fine candidate for governor. He has my permission to get his petitions out now."

RECIPES DEMONSTRATED AT LAST SESSION OF 3-DAY FOOD SCHOOL

To many housewives the most interesting array of new recipes demonstrated in the Gasco Food Institute this week were those of the final session on Friday. They were the recipes for entertainment and "company" dishes. Particularly interesting were the sandwich cake and the ice cream roll.

Quick Aprecan Bread.

3 C. flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 egg
⅓ C. sugar
½ C. choped pecan meats
½ C. dried apricots, cooked
1½ C. milk
Juice of ½ lemon

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add the pecan meats and the cooked apricots cut in pieces. Beat egg slightly and to it add the milk. Stir the liquid lightly into the dry ingredients, add lemon juice, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for one hour. Remove the loaf from the pan and let cool on a wire rack.

Sandwich Cake.

1 round loaf white bread
1 can tuna fish, flaked
Shredded lettuce
Mayonnaise
Baked ham
Celery
Mustard
Tomatoes
Olives

Cut four layers of bread from large, flat, round loaf of bread. Spread first layer with flaked tuna fish, mixed with shredded lettuce and mayonnaise. The next layer, fill with baked ham cut in small pieces and mixed with diced celery and paste mustard. The top layer of your sandwich cake is made with fresh tomatoes cut in small pieces, mixed with chopped olive and salad dressing. Cover this layer with the remaining slice of bread. Frost the entire cake with cream cheese, softened slightly with cream.

Pippins.

4 apples
Juice of 1 lemon
½ C. shredded pineapple
3 egg whites
6 Tbsp. powdered sugar

Peel and core the apples. Dip them into the lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Fill the cavity with shredded pineapple. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff; gradually beat in the powdered sugar. Cover the apples with the meringue and bake them 30 minutes and at 350 degrees.

Target Sandwiches.

1 loaf sandwich bread
Stuffed olives
Parsley, chopped fine
Devilled ham mixture
Pimiento strips
Butter

Slice bread lengthwise into ¼ inch slices. Lay cut slices between folds of a damp cloth and place in refrigerator at least an hour. Remove one slice at a time from dampened cloth and spread generously with softened butter. Place 3 stuffed olives along narrow end of bread. Allow about 2 inch space, then make a strip of chopped parsley. Allow another space, then a strip of pimiento; another 2 inch space, and then the devilled ham. Roll away from you, beginning at olive end, and holding firmly with the fingers. Wrap roll in waxed paper and twist the ends. Store in refrigerator for several hours. When slicing, cut between and through the center of each olive.

Ice Cream Roll.

3 eggs
¼ C. cold water
1 C. sugar
1 C. cake flour
2 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
1 qt. ice cream
Powdered sugar or whipped cream

Beat eggs until light and add cold water and sugar gradually and continue to beat until thick and smooth. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt and fold into egg mixture. Add vanilla and turn into jelly roll pan (about 10x16 inches) which has been well greased. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Turn out immediately on damp cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar. Quickly trim off crusty edges and roll. Wrap in clean towel or cheesecloth and allow to cool. When ready to serve, unroll cake and spread with about 1 quart ice cream. Roll again and place on serving plate. Spread whipped cream over the top—or just sift powdered sugar over it.

Lime Pepper Salad.

½ pkg. (4 Tbsp.) lime-flavored gelatine
¾ C. boiling water
1 Tbsp. vinegar
2 medium green peppers
3 cakes (9 oz.) cream cheese, mashed and seasoned with ¼ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. paprika, and dash white pepper

Dissolve gelatine in boiling water. Add vinegar and chill. When slightly thickened, fold in cheese. Blend. Remove tops and seeds from peppers. Pour boiling water over them and let stand one minute. Drain and chill. Pour cheese mixture into peppers. Place in refrigerator in upright position. Chill until filling is firm. Cut in thin slices, using knife dipped in hot water. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise and paprika.

Salad Platter.

Cottage Cheese—(A mound in center with grated egg yolk sprinkled on top.)

Celery Spears—(Make 3 slits, each about 2 inches long in each stalk of celery cut 3 inches in length. Place these in ice water to give added shape. Just before serving, insert in the mound of cottage cheese.)

Cucumbers—(Cut in ⅛ inch slices. Do not remove outside green.)

Tomatoes—(Remove skins, chill and slice. Arrange in alternate slices with the cucumbers around the cottage cheese mound.)

Four Layer Meat Loaf—(1¼ inch slices brick cheese and 1¼ inch slices cold meat. Stack these alternately and place under broiler long enough for cheese to melt. Slice into three pieces. Arrange on platter.)

Garnishes—(Watercress, parsley, shredded lettuce, stuffed eggs.)

gand, French commander in chief in the Near East all pointed toward an explosive situation.

(Moscow disclosed that blackout drills had been ordered in the great Baku oil area on the Caspian sea.)

Weygand recently conferred with Turkish high command officers at Ankara, then went to Egypt to inspect British-Egyptian forces and confer with the British-Egyptian command. Paris now reports that he is likely to go back to Ankara to complete his conferences.

An Istanbul dispatch to the newspaper Popolo Di Roma here said that the general impression was in Turkey that Germany would not attack the Balkans but that Weygand intended to rush Germany through Russia by cutting off the supplies from the Russian oil fields now beginning to move by tanker from Batoum, terminus of the Baku pipe line, to Constanza(Rumania.

Reds Still Battering Finn Forces at Viipuri.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI —(AP)— The Finnish high command admitted today that the Russians held the fortified coastal area of Koivisto and had made it the starting point for new drives toward Viipuri and against strategic islands in Viipuri bay.

HELSINKI —(AP)— Soviet Russian attacks on the Mannerheim line were concentrated today in a half-dozen spearheads aimed at the shell-battered ghost city of Viipuri, their unattained objective since the invasion of Finland began Nov. 30.

Noncombatants of Viipuri's normal 74,000 population had been removed, but the fury of the Russian drive, particularly since Feb. 1, indicated it remained a much-desired strategic center.

The Finns said one Russian salient northwest of the Kamara railway station was 10 or 12 miles from Viipuri.

(The Russians at the same time declared they were only six miles away.)

Attacks aimed at the city, and others ranging the full 65-mile width of the Karelian isthmus, were being beaten off, the Finns reported, with heavy Russian casualties.

Russians Deny Bombing of Swedish Village.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—Sweden went off the gold standard today as the government convoked a special session of parliament for Sunday afternoon and faced a difficult diplomatic situation as result of Russian denials that Red army planes had bombed the Swedish frontier town of Pajala.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—(U.P.)—A serious diplomatic situation between Sweden and Russia was threatened today by a Russian denial that Soviet airplanes bombed the Swedish frontier town of Pajala.

Foreign Minister C. E. Guenther postponed his departure for Copenhagen where he is to attend a meeting of Scandinavian foreign ministers, and it was indicated strongly that when he did reach Copenhagen he would at once raise the question there.

The foreign office made it known that despite the Russian denial it would maintain its attitude that the planes which bombed Pajala were Russian.

decides are not discriminating against United States goods.

Senator Adams (D.-Colo.) said the yardstick proposal would prohibit the reduction of tariffs below the point where the production cost of foreign goods, plus the tariff, would be less than the cost of production of competing American goods. Support for this idea came from Senator Taft (R.-Ohio).

Adams and Taft also favored elimination of the "most-favored-nation" policy.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, predicted that virtually all Republicans would vote against continuance of the trade program. However, Taft told reporters:

"I am in favor of the reciprocal method, because it is much preferable to congressional log-rolling (the practice of members of congress voting for each other's pet projects). But some standard should be provided to insure that the program will be on a protective rather than a free trade basis.

"I don't favor senate ratification, because that simply would kill the whole program."

ACCUSED CHILD MOLESTER HELD

Detectives Arrest Suspect at His Home; Confesses He Picked Up 11 Girls.

Remy said, but after he was picked from a five-man police lineup by six young girls last night, he admitted he had picked up 11 girls since last May.

Beck, who is married, told officers that when one of the young girls whom he had picked up at one of the city parks last summer objected to going with him, he tied her hands with his handkerchief.

All of the girls said they escaped from the man. They told police they were not attacked.

Three other children and the two girls from Crestline are to be taken to police headquarters today to attempt to identify the suspect and the automobile.

Sheriff E. P. Long said that three men who had seen the car on various occasions when the girls were released in the country also identified the machine last night. Several more are to be brought to the police station to look at the car today.

FIND LONGEST FILM TOO SHORT

Opening Night Crowd of 1,500 Acclaims 'Gone With The Wind.'

to rise again, there moves the story of a small group of individuals their loves, their blunders and their tragedies.

Technicolor, which I have always protested was not the medium for the telling of a starkly dramatic tale, not only adds to this story, but presents a series of pictures as moving and enthralling as the canvasses of the old masters. It might have been Leonard di Vinci himself who laid the colors on the scene of old Mammy weeping outside the door when Rhett Butler holds the body of his beloved child against those who would bury it in the dark ground.

The four people who dominate the picture are Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Hattie McDaniels and Olivia deHavilland. Gable IS Rhett Butler; in fact the actor is so perfectly the reckless blocade runner that the unthinking will feel he isn't acting, that he is just being himself. He is handsome, hard, clear-thinking, cynical and passionately in love with a woman for whom he has neither liking nor respect.

But Vivien Leigh will hit you between the eyes as she hit the Yankee soldier with a bullet from her father's gun. You've no idea what that gal is like from her photographs. She has a stormy, sullen kind of beauty that devils your mind hours after the picture has ended.

No other motion picture actress in the world could have played Scarlett as Miss Leigh plays her. She IS Scarlet: a selfish, unprincipled, magnificently courageous she-devil with grey-green eyes and black hair.

But no one in the picture does a finer piece of work than Hattie McDaniels, colored actress, who plays old Mammy. She is an ebony tower of love and strength and loyalty to her folks. And Melanie, kind, gentle understanding Melanie, comes to life in the person of Olivia deHavilland. Leslie Howard's Ashley Wilkes is in the picture just what it is in the novel—the weak sister of the family; the ineffectual dreamer who held the hearts of two women.

There is no fault to be found with the cast from Thomas Mitchell's Gerald O'Hara to Ona Munson's red-lipped voluptious Belle Watling. The magniture of the action reaches its heighth in the burining of Atlanta and the hospitals where men rotted away for lack of supplies. And there is an emotional clash within you whtn word comes of the men killed at Gettysburg and the fife and drum corps of small boys play "Dixie" with tears falling down their boyish faces.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—you'll want to know who's elected congressman next Tuesday.

"Stop the senseless squandering," demands Candidate Dewey, with apparently as great sincerity as Candidate Roosevelt made the same demand in 1932.

It is said that Sumner Welles knows Spanish so well that he can think in that language—but an apparently greater need just now is for straight American thinking.

Shouldn't Be Too One-Sided

ASSUMPTION that republics of this hemisphere are just one great big happy family is fine, and represents a noble ideal. But when North Americans start looking into the record and find that apparently Uncle Sam has been paying most of the family bills and left holding the bag for many years, they get a little less "simpatico."

More than a billion dollars of private loans, to Central and South American governments seem to be defaulted and ignored. On top of this virtual confiscation has come the expropriation of American oil properties and other private investments in Mexico, with no apparent prospect of settlement.

Uncle Sam is willing to admit that he has done some pretty rough things in the past, down below the Rio Grande, and that many of his private citizens' operations have been rather scandalous. But there has been none of that now for some years, and at present our government and people are leaning over backwards to give the neighbors a square deal. It seems time to ask whether we don't deserve a fair return.

Brazil has been treating us pretty well lately, and now Colombia starts paying some back interest on her debt. If we could just get the hemispheric ball a-rolling among the rest of the neighbors, we'd feel better about the real services Uncle Sam is trying to render his neighbors in a difficult and dangerous time.

WHATEVER else may be said of "Gone With the Wind," as it has been brought to the screen and is now being given its first showing in Mansfield, it cannot be doubted that this magnificent production will be long remembered as revealing the artistry that has been gradually developed in the motion picture industry.

Just as "The Birth of a Nation" continues as an outstanding memory of the turning point in the earlier era of silent pictures, "Gone With the Wind" takes place as a pace-setting achievement in bringing color and sound to the screen in a way that will be regarded, for a time at least, as supreme accomplishment.

Oddly enough, it was the Civil war that inspired both "The Birth of a Nation" and "Gone With the Wind" and it may seem strange to many that this crucial period in United States history has continued as the most interest-compelling in the nation's life.

Based on the first novel written by Margaret Mitchell, an Atlanta newspaper woman, "Gone With the Wind" has, for the past four years been the most discussed story of modern times, and the screen version was preceded by a vast amount of publicity and discussion, through selection of cast and varied incidents of production.

In addition to involving costs in excess of four million dollars "Gone With the Wind" enjoys the distinction of being the longest picture ever screened—with a running time of four hours, including a 15-minute intermission.

For those who have read the novel it may be said that the dramatic story has been transferred to the screen in faithful observance of the author's presentation of characters and happenings.

For any who have not yet read the story, its filming gives a satisfying conception of the author's version of the Old South in Civil war times.

As a story, and as a new high in motion pictures, "Gone With the Wind" merits the unusual attention it is attracting here and elsewhere.

School Athletes Honored

BELATED recognition was received by members and coaches of the Mansfield high school football team at the fifth annual banquet staged by The News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

Speakers paid tribute to the athletes for their successes on the gridiron. They emphasized the importance of the training they received from their advisors and encouraged them to remember the rules of fair play, which are just as important to their success in later life as in a game of football.

Development of character by rigid training rules and combat in actual play is as much of a part of a boy's education as the three R's.

Lessons are taught in football and other competitive games that is not received in the classroom. Athletics teach sportsmanship, confidence and a will to win.

The [illegible] men lauded in brilliant oratory last night are the [illegible] men of Mansfield. What they learned on the [illegible] of good athletics should aid them in later battles of life.

That [illegible] football is a hard game, but it was always appreciated [illegible] presents a battle. Weaklings never [illegible] stars, nor are they often successful in other [illegible] That is the test of a boy's courage.

Victory is [illegible]. Lessons are taught by defeat as well as [illegible]. The player is able to take defeat in the same [illegible] has derived much benefit [illegible]

The Fate of a Nation

ALL THE ALL[illegible] for Finland" writes a [illegible] to establish it when the war is over. [illegible] provisional Finnish government sitting in [illegible] there are provisional Czech and Polish [illegible]

In short, there is a [illegible] at actual help of the [illegible] democracy that was Finland.

Maybe the Allies should do more than that. Even if they [illegible] in guerrilla [illegible] under the autocracies that is still distant, will there be any of flesh-and-blood Poles and Czechs and Finns left to [illegible] those governmental ghosts? If a nation die, shall it live again?

We have seen the first two national assassinations since Hitler and Stalin started on their murderous program, and are now seeing the third. And how many more brave little nations are doomed to extinction before this slaughter stops?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

(Editor's Note—In the following article George Tucker "goes Hollywood" just to express the ideas of a motion picture star's ideas about divorce.)

NEW YORK—Doris and I loved each other very dearly, but after I met Gloria we decided to get a divorce, and the judge fixed it up fine. Doris is a sweet kid and I wish her all the luck in the world.

Our divorce was practically painless, because I was away on location at the time, and anyway Doris had remarried by the time I got back to Los Angeles.

If you back me into a corner and force me to talk, I guess I'll have to admit that this was a disappointment to me, because, in a way, it sort of knocked the edge off the surprise I had for Doris.

You see, Gloria and I had stopped in Las Vegas and got married ourselves, and when we tried to telephone the good news to Doris, she was honeymooning in the desert.

IT WAS just after this that I became a star, and the critics were already talking about awarding me an Oscar when Gloria and I decided on a quiet divorce in Mexico. So we motored down to Tiajuana for a weekend, and then she left for Las Palomas while I hurried back to the studio to star in "Wings Over Reno."

The day we began shooting, a Tuesday as I recall, was a happy day for me because that was the day I met Betty, a sweet kid, and we were quietly married at 3 a. m. in Las Vegas.

We flew back immediately, as I had to be on the set at seven o'clock that morning, and we made all the key papers from Miami to Seattle.

BUT somehow—well, call it incompatability, call it what you will—somehow, Betty and I were not for each other, and so after the divorce I fled East to forget and also to discuss a play they wanted me to do on Broadway.

I went by train, and as I sat brooding at the window, watching the flatboats on the Mississippi, a soft voice suddenly began to play on my ear. "Would you, please, give me your autograph?"

I TURNED and found myself gazing into the clearest pair of eyes I have ever beheld. Her name was Cathy, and for the next 15 minutes we argued whether it would be better to have a civil ceremony or get married at the Little Church Around the Corner. But New York, we learned on inquiry, was 23 hours away, so we wired ahead for a minister and were married on the baggage ramp in the station at Cleveland.

Cathy looked very lovely, and I shall always remember her as a sweet, innocent kid. After we decided that I shouldn't waste my time on Broadway, we returned to California by way of Mexico, and the divorce cost me only $300.

SHORTLY after this I was signed to star in a supercolossal feature and my leading lady turned out to be as gorgeous a creature as I have ever seen. She was a gorgeous kid with great big gorgeous eyes, and we said our vows in an airplane 13,000 feet above Catalina Island just as dawn broke against the mainland coastline.

I shall never forget her eyes at that moment; her great luminous eyes were filled with love and great, splashing, pearl-shaped tears, just as they were a few days later when we parted at the bus terminal. I watched her flutter a little white hankie until she was out of sight. Then I strode into the magistrate's chamber, and a lump rose in my throat as he granted the decree.

SUSAN? . . . Even now I do not hate Susan. Indeed, I love her tenderly. We wept quite frankly and unashamedly at the dock while waiting for the ship that was to take her out of my life.

But two days later I learned by wireless that she was married by the captain on shipboard, and it saddened me, I suppose, in a sentimental sort of way, for I was then on my honeymoon with Angela, and, well, who knows what tomorrow may bring?

Timely Editorial

Best Dressed Men.

Scarcely a day passes without a new list of the best-dressed girls or boys in the public eye. In Hollywood, for instance. Now a guild of custom tailors has listed male occupational groups in the order of their natty appearance. Their conclusions are somewhat surprising.

It is said, for instance, that film stars with large salaries and unlimited sartorial advice at their command are rated no better than third by the tailors. Top place is given the front men in banks, the runners-up are the bankers. Dress is part of the stock in trade of both, but to no larger extent than it is to actors. However, the surprise of the list is bill collectors, listed only two places below the actors and well above radio personalities.

Incidentally, we assume it is only modesty that keeps the tailors off their own list. Those with whom we still have diplomatic relations do quite well for themselves.—Detroit News.

"The Red Badge of Courage."

Tax Squeeze for the Last Drop

By HARLEY L. LUTZ
Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University.

AS THE burden of government increases, all manner of tricks and devices are proposed to squeeze more money from the people in support of the top-heavy governmental structure.

One of these devices is federal collection of certain taxes, with some sharing or crediting arrangement with the states. The mayor of New York City has recently renewed the demand for such an arrangement.

His present idea is that the federal government should retain its taxes on incomes, tobacco, alcohol, and gasoline, and that the rates, presumably, should be increased substantially. Then the federal laws should authorize a credit to the states on account of similar taxes imposed by them.

A tax credit arrangement is operative now with respect to inheritance and unemployment compensation taxes. In these cases, however, the taxpayer receives the benefit of the credit against federal tax, on account of a similar tax paid to the state. A tax credit to the state is strange, different, unreal, and its principal result would be heavier taxes on the individual.

THE problem of financing all units of government is unquestionably so difficult as to be comparable only with having a bear by the tail. No simple, easy formula will solve this problem. The pipe-dream of federal administration of more taxes is certainly no solution. In this article attention is directed to a curious lapse into circular reasoning by the honorable mayor, rather than to basic objections to further federal domination of the states.

Mayor LaGuardia wants federal collection of heavy, uniform taxes first, because some states, his own in particular, have large populations and heavy expenses, and second, because certain states do not use income and other taxes and are not above advertising this fact.

This he regards as unfair competition, and his idea of ending it would be to have federal taxes so heavy as to neutralize the tax advantage of location. He would force these states to adopt similar taxes or lose revenue to the federal government by not establishing the bases for federal tax credits. In other words, the mayor does not want other states to coax residents or industries away from New York City or New York state by their lighter tax levies.

YET the primary cause of his own exeremely difficult fiscal problem is the congestion produced by high population density in the New York metropolitan area. If this density could be materially reduced by a substantial migration out of the New York area, his budgetry difficulties would become less acute because necessary expenditures would drop faster than the revenues would shrink.

Rather than oppose the advantages that other states can now offer through lower taxes, the mayor should welcome all of them as a contribution to the solution of his own problem.

Instead, it is urged that the federal taxing power be used to neutralize these tax differentials. In so far as lighter taxation may be a factor in stimulating the diffusion of great population masses, the destruction of this stimulus by federal action will check the diffusion process.

The great urban masses will tend to remain where they are, and Mayor LaGuardia, in common with the mayors of all other large cities, will continue to have a strong case for huge WPA grants, and for other subsidies and aids from federal and state governments to assist them in caring for the people, some of whom might have been induced to go elsewhere had the tax advantage of another location been preserved. The large cities cannot finance themselves, mainly because they are so large. Yet they are unwilling to approve of any measure that will contribute to the relief of population density, although this density is the tap-root of their fiscal difficulty.

Listen, World!

There Are No Right Answers.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE are people who must know all the Right Answers before they'll go ahead. Safety First people. The Stop-Look-'n'-Listen School of Thought.

Once upon a time—'way back in grandpa's day—such people got along nicely. For there was plenty of leisure then to dope out the Right Answers. Nothing changed much, or fast. Things were as they always had been—and, chances were, would continue to be that way. So all you needed to do to keep out of any trouble was to follow the Old Folks' blueprints and not make any reckless experiments or take any risky detours.

But—though it's still news to a lot of humans—"time marches on," and those Good Old Days are gone forever.

We're in the Machine Age now, neighbors, and times have not only changed, but are continuing to change with each passing hour. Human life no longer stays put, even for a week. You wake each morning in an entirely new world. New needs, new challenges, new conditions. And it's just your bad luck if you can't be new with them.

So the Safety First people are surely on a spot.

For there are no "Right Answers" in the Machine Age.

The answer that's "right" today will be wrong tomorrow—and forgotten the day after that. It's no use to "stop, look and listen" before you cross the track—for the track is NEVER clear. You've just got to learn to be a good dodger and take your chances.

What was "good enough for your father" ISN'T good enough for you. The blueprints that had served grandpa so nicely once are just a wad of waste today. We're on our way—and God only knows where we're heading.

But why peeve about that? Why go around chewing your nails and bleating for the Good Old Days when all was slow and safe and cozy? That's what the cave man did when the first thatched hut appeared. He, too, deplored changing times—wanted to hide behind his safe and solid boulders. But the human race came out of its cave despite his bleats . . . moved out into the open . . . took to the trail . . . disappeared from his tiny enclosure over far and dangerous horizons.

Life, as well as Time, marches on.

And if you can't march with it, partner, you're as doomed as the Neanderthal man or vanished monsters of the reptile age.

The world has no use today for the person who boasts that he makes up his mind, then never changes it. Nor for the person who sticks by his principles so hard that you can't sell him a new set. Such people are not, nor ever were, a treat or an asset to human society. They are and always have been a pain-in-the-neck to both God and Humanity.

For Truth isn't stationary . . . invariable . . . a rigidly defined rule eternally established. Truth flows. Truth changes. Truth grows as fast as our growing spirits are able to receive it. Truth is as intimate as Life itself, and no man can ever determine it by his diminutive understanding, or encompass it with his childish imagination.

Which, though you may not know it, is the swellest break you could have. For if you have flow with Life's change with Truth, you need never grow old. There will always be new challenges . . . new adventures . . . new answers.

Life, for the brave and inquisitive is always at its dawning. But those who cannot change are already dead men walking.

Summary of Week's Happenings

FINLAND, like Spain, has been a proving ground for war theories.

Chief problem has been whether a new-fangled series of fortifications like the Mannerheim line could be breeched, and at what cost.

This week the experts had part of the answer. The Russians actually did breech the line and endanger Viipuri. But behind that line lay others. And the Finns, while yelling for help, were still confident. The cost: As yet to be reckoned.

Near Lake Ladoga Finns said they "completely annihilated" a Red division; and scattered a Soviet swarm of strange bug-like bobsleds, powered by propellers, that had attempted to skirt land fortifications in a surprise coup.

Fleets of Russian bombers—800 in all—were reported to have darkened the skies of Southern Finland on Tuesday. Helsinki alone had seven air raid alarms.

Then Russia's army claimed—with Finns denying—that it had taken the town and fortress of Koivisto, key to the entire western end of the Mannerheim Line.

End In Sight?

And from all over Russia came hints that the big push was on. Some sources confidently confided that Red troops would smash through the Mannerheim Line in time for the Red army's 22nd anniversary this week-end.

But the Finns seemed to think the war would last at least until summer for they began mobilizing bicycles to replace skis when the snow leaves and the ground dries.

In nearby Sweden the issue of how much aid could be given to Finland brought a serious political crisis. The "Activists," who cry "Finland's cause is ours," were indignant when the government refused to send an army to Finland.

So critical was the situation that aged, esteemed King Gustaf stepped in Tuesday and declared: "I am absolutely sure that if Sweden now intervened in Finland we would run the risk of being involved in war not only with Russia but also in a war between the great powers, and I cannot take that responsibility."

Sweden's position was complicated Wednesday when seven Russian warplanes dropped about 40 bombs—apparently by accident—on a Swedish frontier town.

At Home

Return Engagement.

Back in 1922 William Bioff was convicted of pandering in Chicago. He served eight days of a six-month term, then was released pending the outcome of an appeal. Records do not disclose that he ever won the case—or that he ever went back to jail. Eventually he became boss of Hollywood's powerful labor unions.

This week Chicago had him sent back to finish the sentence. After being figerprinted and jailed, and later released on bail, he resigned his job of chairman of the Conference of Studio Unions. When he finishes his visit to Chicago he must face trial in Los Angeles on a charge of income tax evasion.

How's Business?

Industrial activity and retail trade slipped during January and early February, the Federal Reserve Board reported this week, but still were well ahead of this time last year.

Factory employment and payrolls, after a sharp upswing during the last half of 1939, dropped more than usual for this season. So did private residential building. Commercial bank loans declined, while demand deposits continued to rise.

Bright spots: export trade (particularly cotton shipments), auto assemblies, machinery production, coal mining, meat packing, crude petroleum output.

Federal "Combing."

The special House Committee investigating the Labor Board slapped subpoenas, this week, on Secretary of the Navy Edison, Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of Labor Perkins, and aides of the RFC and Treasury procurement division. It promised to "comb" every government body which enters into contracts with private firms "to get the whole picture" of any "black-jacking" of contractors charged with unfair labor tactics.

A Boss Is Bounced.

Shades of Huey Pierce Long, four years in his grave, dominated Louisiana's Democratic primary last Tuesday.

The Long machine went down in defeat when Sam Houston Jones defeated Earl Long, brother of Huey, in the Democratic runoff primaries—for the Democratic nomination assures election in Louisiana.

Prosperity Note.

Fifty-five persons had incomes of a million dollars or more in 1938. This was six more than in 1937, though six less than the preceding year. The Treasury also announced that nearly 3,000,000 Americans had enough income to be taxed, in 1938.

Platform Proposal.

Having scheduled their national convention to start Monday, June 24, in Philadelphia, Republicans took thought this week on a platform to offer in place of the New Deal. As something to chew on, a committee of 209 party thinkers headed by Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of Wisconsin University, tossed them a 28,000-word "program for a dynamic America." Major principles:

The U. S. should keep out of war. Defense forces should be strengthened to protect the western hemisphere. Trade agreements should be subject to congressional okay. The Wagner Act should be overhauled and NLRB's administrative and judicial functions separated. The farm program should adjust prices to stimulate inter-change of goods between town and country. Government regulation of business should be "protective," not "restrictive."

And government expenses should be cut 20%. The higher surtaxes on individual incomes should be reduced; certain business levies should be repealed; federal and state bond issues should be taxed. The president's emergency monetary powers should be repealed. Adequate relief should be provided for all in need, with the administration entrusted to local governments. Social security legislation should be studied with a view to improvement and expansion.

Abroad

The Road Back.

From 1851 to 1931 Catholic bishops for Spain were nominated by the king. When republicans then took over, separating church from state and confiscating church property, that privilege reverted to the Pope. Now, having overthrown the republic, Gen. Francisco Franco wants it back.

At the Vatican, where negotiations were resumed this week, prelates hinted at a compromise under which Madrid could veto the Pope's appointments. Franco previously had agreed to restore all Jesuit properties in Spain—but, it was reported, still was holding 60 priests among his 500,000 political prisoners.

South American Way.

Washington remembers Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia, former minister from Paraguay, as a man of "pronounced democratic ideas." Last summer this 51-year-old hero of the Chaco War against Bolivia was inaugurated as Paraguay's president for a four-year term. This week he announced: "Our nation has reached the edge of horrible anarchy. . . . I assume all political powers of the republice."

People

Traveling Man.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, since entering the White House in 1933, has traveled an average of more than 25,000 miles a year. His first major jaunt of 1940 carried him, this week, into the Pacific. His whereabouts, after sailing from Pensacola, Fla., last week-end, had been kept secret until he turned up Sunday at the Panama Canal Zone to inspect its recently reinforced defenses. His ship, the naval cruiser Tuscaloosa, was convoyed by two destroyers.

While the president fished, Mrs. Roosevelt—who gets around even more than he—put in at Miami Beach, Fla., "for a month of sun and the sea."

Roosevelts In Court.

When Jimmy Roosevelt was attending Harvard in 1928 he met Betsy Cushing, daughter of a noted Boston brain specialist, in a Cambridge bridle path. They were married two years later and two children were born to the couple. Now the president's eldest son has brought a divorce action—and she has filed a cross-complaint—in the California courts. If the divorce is granted, it will be the third for the president's five children.

In Short

Dropped: By the House, a million-dollar item for the improvement of Guam's harbor, which was requested in the president's budget.

Died: Ljuba Davidovitch, former Yugoslav premier; Rudy Wiedoeft, saxophonist; James A. Hittle, pioneer auto maker.

Criticized: President Roosevelt's silence on his third-term intentions as demoralizing to the party, by Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado.

Urged: That the Wagner Act be amended to prevent closed shops in newspaper editorial offices, by Oliver Holden of the American Press Society, in a talk before the house labor committee.

Quotes

Mrs. Roosevelt: "Democracy doesn't mean having the same religion or color. It means more citizens who can share better things all the time."

Mayor LaGuardia: "It took me 35 years to become mayor and I don't know yet whether it was worth it."

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Blue Monday."

We have an inquiry for the significance of this expression, which we use ordinarily in allusion to Monday being the day when one must return to work, after the Sunday holiday. In England the term is used for the second Monday after an important horse race, for this is the day decreed at Tatersall's as the time when settlements must be made.

Originally, "Blue Monday" was the Monday before Lent. Its name is said to have originated in Germany, in allusion to the fact that on that day the altar cloths were changed to blue (actually a bluish violet), and observances of the day made.

Everyday Poem

Treasures of Mercy.

How treasured are loved memories.
We live again the days
Of happines we knew, we walk
Unnumbered times old ways

Where some bright, joyful happening
Was ours, some friendship shone.
We do not lose the past we love
Or what its hours have known.

Oh, what a thing is memory
That gives us once again
Old days, illumining their joy
And softening grief and pain.

Cleveland Prelate Gets Unusual Papal Honor

In services in St. John's Cathedral in Cleveland, Archbishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland receives the pallium, a signal honor bestowed on him by Pope Pius XII. It was the first time in the history of the Catholic church in the United States that a pallium—sign that he shares in the pope's supreme pastoral power—had been bestowed on a prelate with the personal rank of archbishop while he remained as bishop of a see that was not an archdiocese. In the photo are Dr. Clarence Elwell, Archbishop Schrembs and Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati.

FIGHT FOR LOVE + + + + + + +

By SYLVIA TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1940)

"I have all sorts of friends," she said carelessly, not realizing that she was answering her secretary's question. "People are my hobby. All kinds of people. Human nature in the rough, if you like. I do not consider myself too good for any one alive. I make friends with anybody who interests me without regard to his manners or morals. I like to find out what people think, and why. And the amazing part of it is that when you know them you can always find a plausible explanation for most of the things they do. That doesn't mean, however, that I shall expect you to do likewise. You are much too inexperienced and too beautiful to have anything to do with a man like Ed Condon."

"Mrs. Epperson said I might sit in the writing room when there was company downstairs," Star explained. "I must have been asleep. I didn't hear him come in."

Nina laughed.

"My dear child, I am not blaming you. Merely making it clear that I do not expect you to follow my example in making friends with every one you meet. And while we're on the subject, telling you how to keep a man like Ed at arm's distance and still not offend him."

"If I don't intend to be friends with him, I don't see that it matters," Star said.

"In this particular case perhaps it doesn't," Nina granted. "But if you wish to become a poised, charming woman you must acquire the habit of keeping complete control of any situation. Never take anything that happens too seriously. Smoothness, my dear, is an invaluable quality. The idea is never to display anger or dismay, nor ever to lose one's dignity."

Seeing the girl's troubled expresison, she added kindly. "I suppose it all sounds like Greek to you doesn't it? Never mind. You'll pick up information as you go along but just remember this. You don't have to take anything from any man. Don't think they like you better for it. Men have no respect for the woman who is meek and humble. That's why so many nice girls never get anywhere. They think being virtuous is an end in itself. Well, it isn't. A good woman needs just as much finesse to carry her through as the other kind. But that's enough for today. Come downstairs. It's time for dinner."

Completely bewildered by the entire conversation, Star followed the plump, vivid figure into the dining room. When there were no other guests, she was to eat with Nina. Otherwise she would have a tray in her room. Star wished she might always eat there. It worried her to have to sit at the table with the older woman. She was afraid her limited knowledge would betray her when it came to the correct fork or spoon. She discovered, however, that the meals were simple, and watching Nina made it impossible to make a mistake.

Nina was a most unusual person. Different from any one Star had ever known. Impetuous and spontaneous, kind until she suspected dishonesty or unfairness, then making her accusations in a controlled rage without raising her voice.

Mrs. Epperson had been right when she said their employer had "queer ideas." Nina had also told the truth when she said she liked all kinds of people. When she wasn't writing, she filled her house with them. Any one she happened to meet was sure to appear sooner or later. Nina's attitude to them all was exactly the same. Mrs. Epperson might turn up her nose, but the writer was unfailingly gracious to any one who entered her door. Star thought she was the most wonderful person in the world. Nina's word became law to her secretary, and as the weeks went by she began to conform in her manners as well as her clothes. The salary Star received was small but having no other expense she was able to purchase a couple of cool pastel colored dresses to wear in the afternoons.

Her duties as a secretary were light. There were occasional days when Nina acted like a writer and kept Star busy until late at night. Usually however their working period was confined to the hours before noon. Star seldom typed more than an hour or two after lunch, but more and more Nina depended on her for other things. To help Mrs. Epperson with the sandwiches or serve the cocktails or entertain some poor soul who had taken advantage of Nina's cordial invitation to 'drop in any time" on the wrong day.

It was marvelous training for the girl, who became almost as proficient in making people comfortable as her employer. Leading them to talk about themselves was an infallible method which worked quite as well with Nina's more sophisticated friends as it did with the others. And Star met so many people that first month that she would not have recognized any of them had she seen them on the street. But it was all fascinating and so interesting that she had no time to worry.

Twice she telephoned her mother to see if she were forgiven but Mamie's voice was so cold Star decided not to risk a meeting. Which no doubt, was the reason Mamie took the matters into her own hands.

It was a warm afternoon in late July when Star, who had been serving iced drinks to some of Nina's more distinguished friends, was called to the door by Mrs. Epperson.

"There's a woman out here who insists upon seeing you," she said.

Star suspected who it was. With a sinking heart she followed the housekeeper's rigid figure to the door where Mamie stood in the wilting glory of an organdy dress. It was pink, her favorite color, and with it she wore a broad-brimmed hat heavy with flowers, which dipped and nodded as Mamie tossed her head.

Star said stonily, "Hello, Mother. Is anything wrong?"

"I want to talk to you," Mamie declared.

Star glanced at the housekeeper who guarded the door but she couldn't turn her mother away. After all she was not so different in looks from some of the characters Nina entertained.

"If you'll be quiet we can go up to my room," she suggested.

"Why should I be quiet?" bellowed Mamie.

"Sh!" warned Mrs. Epperson. "Mrs. Lambert has company."

"Don't you shush me!" advised Mamie, shouldering her aside.

Nina appeared in the living room door looking mildly amused.

"What's the trouble?" she inquired.

"It's my mother," Star explained.

"Well, take her upstairs," Nina directed. "And Mrs. Epperson can bring her something cold to drink."

The housekeeper snorted and Nina returned to her guests as the other two climbed the stairs.

"Now, there's a lady for you," stated Mamie in a loud voice. "If you ask me, there's a real lady."

Cheese Has Prime Place Among Foods

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Cheese has always been a favorite food in every clime. The Greeks had a word for it and made it from goat's milk. The early Egyptians called on the camel for their favorite cheese. The Lapps in Lapland even stole a march on Santa Claus to make up their reindeer variety, so cheese as a food, as well as an extra snack, holds a prime place. There are all sorts of cheese in bulk by the pound, and there are those glass jars filled with tangy spreads that serve as a cooking ingredient as well as in sandwich spread form.

Different Rarebit.

Salmon Pickle Rarebit, good and different, is made with two cups cooked salmon, two tablespoons butter, four teaspoons flour, one-half teaspon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard, dash of pepper, cup of milk, two cups grated American cheese, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons chili sauce and one-third cup thinly-sliced sweet pickles. Drain fish, remove skin and bones. Flake flesh coarsely. Melt butter smooth. Add milk and cheese, and cook over low flame until cheese has melted and sauce has thickened, stirring constantly. Add Worcestershire sauce, chili sauce and salmon. Simmer five minutes longer. Add pickles. Serve on crisp buttered toast. Six portions.

Macaroni combines with cheese to form some fine dishes. For a good, nourishing dish use three-fourths package macaroni, three quarts water, teaspoon salt, four ounces cheese, one cup chopped Brazil nuts, two cups canned tomatoes, salt and pepper. Cook macaroni in boiling water until tender. Drain, blanch in cold water and arrange in greased baking dish in alternate layers with cheese and nuts. Season tomatoes to taste with salt and pepper, and pour over macaroni. Bake at 375 degrees F. about 15 minutes, or until cheese is melted.

Cheese Shortcakes.

Cheese Shortcakes, split open and filled with creamed mushrooms, creamed eggs or seafood—there's a grand dish for luncheon or supper. To make eight shortcakes take two cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three teaspoons phosphate baking powder, five tablespoons shortening, one-half cup grated American cheese, two-thirds cup milk. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder into a bowl. Add the shortening; cut in with two knives or with pastry blender. Stir the milk into the flour with a fork to make soft but not sticky dough. Turn the dough on to a slightly-floured board and knead a few seconds. Pat or roll to a thickness of one-half inch. Cut in two and one-half-inch rounds. Place on a baking sheet and bake in 450 degree F. oven 12-15 minutes.

For Oyster Fritters with a tangy cheese sauce, use 24 oysters on half shell. Drain and dry them. Add milk to oyster liquid to make two-thirds cup. Mix with well-beaten egg. Combine one and one-third cups flour, also one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Mix in liquid. Dip oysters in flour, then in batter. Fry in deep fat. Serve with sauce made with one and one-half cups white sauce over one-half cup grated cheese and one tablespoon parsley added to it.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MARY had undressed and gone to bed in obedience to my mandate, but, as I expected, she was far from sleep in spite of the sedative I had ordered. At my entrance she sat bolt upright and looked at me questioningly.

"Well?" she said explosively. "What did she broadcast?"

Just exactly what you would expect from any discerning person hearing that recitation which [illegible]

[illegible] I want you to have a good [illegible] before beginning it. Aunt [illegible]'s sedative ought to put [illegible] to sleep, so please relax now [illegible]

[illegible] I was an important session with [illegible] rehearsal this afternoon [illegible] Library —"

"Soothing her troubled spirits with the strains of her harp, I suppose," Mary gibed.

"You are eminently correct," I told her, laughing.

"And where is my dear papa-in-law? With his royal inamorata?"

"Yes, and I was expected to join them before this."

"Don't flatter yourself that they'll miss you if you don't get there for another hour," Mary retorted.

"I'm perfectly aware of that," I said, "but I haven't any more time to waste. Wagner Got Start as Pro In Steubenville, Not Here

By CHARLES FRY

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Sixty-six years old today and as inseparable from Pittsburgh baseball as Forbes field, Honus Wagner is ready to begin another season, his 29th, in the National league.

In 21 years as a player, the "Flying Dutchman" shone as one of the game's brightest stars, leaving on the books some records never equalled.

* * * * *

Yet he nearly quit baseball in 1905, when the horseless carriage "got" him, much as airplanes captivate the youth of today.

* * * * *

He still enjoys telling how Ed Barrow, now president of the New York Yankees, found him throwing stones, like kids will, and signed him to a contract. That's how one of baseball's greatest careers started.

Like scores of other youngsters, Wagner started playing baseball on the sandlots, then entered the professional game in 1895 in Steubenville, O., in the old Tri-State league at what he thought was "the big salary of $35 a month."

"I stayed about two months," he recalled, "then went to play for Mansfield, O. From there I went to Adrian, Mich., in the Michigan State league, where I was manager for a month before I got homesick and came back to play with Warren, Pa., in the Iron and Oil league where my brother Al and all my friends were playing."

"It was early in 1896," he continued, "that Al, myself, and a few of the boys were trying to see who could throw stones the farthest over Chartiers creek (near Pittsburgh) when two men came up and watched us for awhile. One of them was Ed Barrow."

"He talked with me about signing for the Paterson, N. J., club (of the old Atlantic league) and I did for the 1896 season."

It was at Paterson that Wagner first drew attention of big time baseball men. And he says he'll "never forget the day" when the late Barney Dreyfuss—then owner of the Louisville Pirates—"came over to Paterson to look me over. George Stallings, then manager of the Phillies, was there for the same reason."

"I was playing left field," chuckled Honus, "and threw two runners out at the plate, but I guess I didn't make a hit with either Mr. Dreyfuss or Stallings. George later told me he wouldn't pay my carfare to Philadelphia, while Mr. Dreyfuss went back to Louisville wondering why he had wasted his time."

* * * * *

But Dreyfuss changed his mind. Henry Pulliam, later president of the National league, then was secretary of the Louisville club. He argued with the boss until Dreyfuss signed Wagner to a $2,000 a year contract.

* * * * *

That's how the Herculean Honus entered the majors. He played for the Pirates until he retired, coming to Pittsburgh from Louisville when Dreyfuss transferred the franchise.

And it was the same Dreyfuss who kept him in the game, after Honus bought a small garage and wanted to quit. It was Dreyfuss who convinced him that his future was in baseball.

"He was right, too," grinned Honus, who then lived in nearby Mansfield, Pa., because:

"There were only three automobiles in Mansfield and I owned one of them. Why, in going through my old records I discovered I used to sell 15 gallons of gas a week—and I was using 10 of them."

Wagner now serves as coach of the team for which he played in 2,785 games in every position but catcher. He pounded out 3,430 hits and posted the all-time batting average of .329. He scored 1,740 runs and batted .300 or better for 17 years.

These are some of the other records he left before ending his playing career—after 24 seasons in the majors—in 1917 at the age of 43:

He led the National league eight consecutive seasons in batting and stole six bases in a single world series, a feat equalled by Shorty Slage, of the Cubs, but never surpassed. Wagner did it in the 1909 Pittsburgh-Detroit series. His fielding record was 4,320 putouts, 5,664 assists and 612 errors for an all time average of .943.

Leaving the big leagues, he still was good for ten more seasons of semi-pro ball. To constant exercise—he's still at it—Wagner attributes his hearty health today.

Sixty-five years have left their mark on the stocky man but when spring training season rolls around, he's as anxious as the rawest rookie to be off to camp. The first contingent of Pirates left today for San Bernardino, Cal., but because this is Wagner's birthday, he remained at home to observe the occasion with his family at nearby Carnegie. He'll entrain for camp with the second group in a week.

* * * * *

Wagner's top salary was $10,000, "big money in those days." He never was a holdout, never argued about his contract.

* * * * *

And when the subject of Benny McCoy came up, Wagner was asked:

"By the way, how much did Barrow pay you to sign?"

Surprised, Honus said, "Why, nothing."

Bill Terry Reveals Dean' Retirement

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP)—While Dizzy Dean has been talking about retiring from the baseball business unless he gets the salary he wants, his brother Paul has quietly quit.

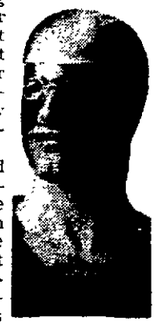
Bill Terry, who drafted Paul from Columbus for his New York Giants, revealed the younger Dean's retirement when he arrived here yesterday to open the New York training camp. "Dean phoned me a couple of nights ago," Terry said. "He told me that after long and careful deliberation he had decided to quit baseball for all time.

'The Hun' To Return

Masked Marvel to Face Achiu on Mat Card Billed In Armory Monday.

"The Hun" is a name that has been flitting from tongue to tongue in Mansfield this week.

Fans have talked about this weird appearing masked wrestler more than about any other mat figure to appear on the Mansfield pad in many years, and they've good cause.



'The Hun'

The black-clad unknown, flaunting his huge Nazi swastika on his robe, made one of the most impressive debuts any wrestler ever has scored on the mat in defeating "Flash" Clifford of Louisville and it set the mat fans to talking.

On next Monday night in the Armory, "The Hun" will make his second start here. He's been matched with Walter "Sneeze" Achiu, flashy little Chinese-Hawaiian wrestler from Honolulu, in the semi-final of the mat show in the Armory.

It'll be a two out of three falls match with a 45 minute time limit and the weird "Hun," whoever he is, can expect some pretty stiff competition from Achiu who is one of the most clever men of his weight to appear here.

* * *

And by the way who is "The Hun?" Local fans have been wondering that question and advancing many theories. Many say he is the same man as the individual who calls himself the Masked Marvel. The "experts" among the fans say he simply changes costumes. In one he wrestles as the Marvel, in the other "The Hun."

Purdue Takes On Wisconsin

Boilermakers Favored to Hold Place on Top.

CHICAGO—(AP)—It's Wisconsin's turn tonight to try to stop Purdue—a task the other Big Ten basketball teams have found almost impossible so far this season.

Indiana succeeded in turning back the boilermakers on one occasion, but the Hoosiers were upset twice themselves, accounting for Purdue's spot at the head of the conference cage parade.

Tonight's five-game scheduled leaves the season's end only three games away.

* * *

The predictions on tonight's game with records included: Minnesota (3-5) at Ohio State (5-3): Ohio State appears to have an edge of nine points or so in this one.

Purdue (7-1) at Wisconsin (2-6): Based on their won-lost records, the Badgers haven't a chance.

Chicago (1-7) at Indiana (6-2): The Hoosiers, waiting and hoping for Purdue to falter, figure to take this game easily.

Michigan (4-4) at Illinois (5-3): Bill Hapac and his mates rate an edge of eight points or so over the Wolverines.

Iowa (3-5) at Northwestern (4-4): We'll string along with the Wildcats.

SIGNED FOR BRESICA

DAYTON—(AP)—Buddy Knox, Dayton heavyweight, was signed today to box George Bresica of South America in Cleveland on Feb. 29 and at the same time was pronounced ready to meet Jack (Buddy) Walker, undefeated Columbus sensation.

Horvath Honored At Dinner

Templeton received honorable mention from the selectors.

The presentation highlighted one of the most successful in the series of banquets staged by The News-Journal, the program continuing until 11 p. m.

Congratulating the Tygers and complimenting the coaches on their season, George E. Gauthier, athletic director and head football coach of Ohio Wesleyan, who was the principal speaker, impressed upon his listeners that "victory is not everything in football."

"Friends you make in football stay with you a long time," he declared.

"Neither," he added, "is physical strength and fitness the greatest essential to a football player. First, as a coach, I'm interested in his heart, in whether or not he has that desire to win."

Gauthier explained what he thought were important in the development of a winning football team. "Hard-running backs, determined blocking and vicious tackling bring victories," he said.

In closing, he selected the Boy Scout oath as his slogan for football players and other athletes, urging them to be "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

During his talk, Gauthier mentioned three of his former football proteges, R. R. Poling, Dr. R. D. Campbell and W. S. Ross of Mansfield, who were at the banquet.

Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield team lauded his players for their performance during the season and said that he could recall no game in which any of them refused to give their best.

In speaking of next year's prospects, the Tyger mentor stated that "we will have a small team, but I am not disheartened because it will be one of the scrappiest clubs I've ever coached."

Vern Hoffman, head basketball coach and assistant to Snyder in football, in speaking of his first year at Mansfield high, told of the co-operative spirit shown by the athletes and the high degree of competitive spirit. Praising the hard players who made up the reserve team, called the "Termites," Hoffman said that "it's the second team that makes the first team." He introduced the basketball squad members, also guests at the banquet.

Harry Mehock, athletic director of the Mansfield school system, was unable to attend the banquet because of illness.

John G. Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, described the gridders as "ambassadors of good will for the city," in his brief talk.

Other speakers on the program were Mayor W. J. Locke, H. W. Arlin, president of the Mansfield board of education; Jesse Beer, principal of Mansfield high school; V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association; J. C. Hartline, president of the Mansfield baseball club, and Jim Scott, Ohio Wesleyan basketball coach.

John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal, opened the program and presented Atty. Carl H. Henkel, who handled the duties of toastmaster in a masterful fashion.

Guests Introduced.

Other guests introduced were Coach Al Fendrick and Capt. Bill Heichel of Madison, Coach W. L. Miley and Co-Captains Howard Hamilton and Bill Martin of Bellville and Coach Bob Burgett and Capt. Jack Wilson of Butler, Bob De Haven of Simpson Junior high and Ralph Cameron of Johnny Appleseed junior high.

Football letters were awarded to Earl Games, Edward Goettle, Robert Guegold, Martin Henke, Mike Horvath, Howard Hershey, Jack Hughes, Ed Kinkel, James LeMunyon, Robert Lantz, Ross Laughman, Joe Logan, Eugene Miller, George Murray, John Pfahler, William Rowe, Harold Remy, Alex Radovich, Robert Sandel, Paul Sauder, Marshall Smith, Dave Templeton, Richard White, Richard Weaver, Harold Williams, and Russell Beer. John Foster, Charles Palmer and Lawrence Boylan were the managers who received letters. Coach Snyder also awarded letters to the cheerleaders. No captain was elected at this year's banquet as Snyder's policy next fall will be to appoint leaders for each game.

The Mansfield high school band, directed by J. Merlon Holcombe, played during the dinner. The program was climaxed with motion pictures of 1939 collegiate football games, shown by Harry DeLaney of the Ohio theater.

Flying Scots Nearer Title, Trim Carroll

Wooster Chalks Up 12th Straight Win as It Gives Streaks Drubbing.

(By Associated Press)

Only two teams stand between Wooster and another Ohio conference basketball championship.

* * *

The Flying Scots moved a step nearer the title last night with their 12th consecutive league victory of the season, a 49 to 36 triumph over John Carroll.

Wooster faces Oberlin next Thursday and Muskingum on March 2. The Muskies, in second place with 10 straight decisions, have three games left to play, including the tussle with the Scots.

The Scots led the Blue Streams at the first period, 14 to 10, increased the margin to 22 to 16 at the half and went into the final stanza on the long end, 37 to 28. Gilbert (Pudge) Hole again paced the Wooster attack with 19 points.

De Sales dropped Miami from among the leaders in the statewide standings with a 46 to 45 victory, the 12th of the season for the Toledo five. The winners were on top at intermission, 23 to 14, but were forced to come from behind in the final seconds to take the verdict on Jack Blackburn's long goal. Mack Long sparked the determined Redskins attack with 9 goals and 3 free throws.

John Moore and Tom Fuller tossed in 12 points each as Wilberforce upset Tiffin university, 48 to 45. Tom Conrad had 13 for the losers.

* * *

Cedarville swamped Urbana junior college, 66 to 25, for its 10th decision in 17 games.

MIXED MARKET FEATURED BY STEEL ADVANCE

Holders of Aviation Shares Encouraged by Report of Possible European Orders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steels gained a bit in a market of mixed trends today.

With the United States aviation industry already working at high speed against its huge backlog of orders, Wall Street received new food for thought from the British-French joint statement of intention to purchase about $1,000,000,000 worth of new aircraft in this country.

The financial district was particularly curious as to what allotments of work would be given the various manufacturing companies.

Also noted was the commerce department's estimate that private utilities would install this year 2,000,000 kilowatts additional power generating facilities at a cost of $600,000,000, greatly expanding electric distribution in the nation

THEATERS

Technical To Nth Degree.

Because most producers insist on making motion pictures tell the truth, actors are occasionally called on to do things they never did before. The significance of this observation was disclosed when Clark Gable discovered he had acquired new social graces during the filming of "Gone With the Wind" which is showing now two shows daily at the Madison theater. He was required to enact for closeups many intimate accomplishments of a dashing young blood of the '60's. For example, he had to learn to dance the Virginia reel smoothly, smoke cigars and learn to drive a carriage. The girls had difficulty in learning to wear and handle hoop skirts, pick cotton and many other small tasks.

Lamarr and Tracy Co-Starred.

Hedy Lamarr plays a dramatic role in "I Take This Woman," which opens today at the Ohio theater. She is co-starred with Spencer Tracy. The story is of a social butterfly, who, when her romance crashes, finds sanctuary and finally real love, happiness and a new destiny at the side of an earnest scientist. The action of the story is in New York. Verree Teasdale has one of her best wisecracking roles and Kent Taylor enacts Tracy's rival for Miss Lamarr An elaborate musical score includes the new song hit "Rendezvous in Rio."

Blondie Returns.

The Bumsteads-Blondie, Dagwood and Baby Dumpling—appear at the Majestic theater Sunday and Monday in characteristic portrayal entitled "Blondie" Penny Singleton, young musical comedy star, has the title role, and Dagwood is played by Arthur Lake. Blondie takes the family over the well-known bumps, both financial and domestic. The second feature is "Framed" with Constance Moore, Frank Albertson and Sidney Blackmer in the leading roles. Exposes the methods by which blackmail rings and extortion racketeers prey upon unhappy victims and force them to pay tribute which totals millions of dollars a year.

Frontier Adventure.

"Drums Along the Mohawk," with Claudete Colbert, Henry Fonda and Edna May Oliver in the leading roles comes to the Ritz theater for a three day run, beginning Sunday. This is a story in technicolor of the frontier men and women who fought to preserve their happiness and social freedom. The story is based on the best-selling novel by W. D. Edmonds of the stirring days of adventure and romance when America was young The second feature is "Heaven With a Barbed Wire Fence," starring Jean Rogers and Raymond Walburn.

Joe E. Brown and Karloff.

Joe E. Brown in "Beware Spooks" is showing at the Park theater beginning Sunday. This is a comedy which turns crime wave into waves of laughter. As a patrolman who is the toast of the mobs because his dim-witted efficiency means easy life for hold-up men, the large-mouthed comedian is seen in one of his funniest shows. "The Fatal Hour," starring Boris Karloff is the second feature, with a story of two murders at police headquarters, with Karloff, as James Lee Wong, Chinese detective, called in to solve them.
